He retired as vice president and general manager of the Plain Dealer. His retirement date is unknown.
- His obituary was published in the Plain Dealer on Nov 30, 1998 in Cleveland, Cuyahoga County, OH.
F. William Dugan once said there was not "anything more competitive in the world than newspaper advertising." In a career spanning 47 years at The Plain Dealer, culminating with his leadership as vice president and general manager of the newspaper, Mr. Dugan thrived on that competition and was a financial backbone of the company. Mr. Dugan, 91, died Saturday at Normandy Manor of Rocky River, where he had lived more than a year. "I remember him as a fierce newspaper advertising competitor who believed that exceptional service to readers and advertisers was the most effective way of growing circulation and advertising revenue," said Plain Dealer President and Publisher Alex Machaskee. "He was a man of deep commitment to his faith."
Mr. Dugan joined The Plain Dealer in 1927, working part time as a classified advertising salesman while attending John Carroll University. Two years later, he began working full time at the newspaper.
In 1934, he moved to the retail display advertising department as a salesman, handling financial advertising and later handling accounts of retail apparel and men's shoe stores. He was promoted to retail advertising manager in 1951. In 1960, he became advertising director and later assistant business manager.
Mr. Dugan was promoted to general manager in June 1961. The title of vice president was given to him the following year.
Thomas Vail, former publisher and editor, president and chairman of The Plain Dealer, called Mr. Dugan an intensely loyal and devoted leader at the newspaper. "He was very conservative in his views and single-minded," Vail said. "He was really a straight arrow. He wouldn't stand for anything that wasn't good for The Plain Dealer. But, he had a great sense of humor, too."
Vail credited Mr. Dugan with his own appointment as publisher and chief executive of the newspaper in 1962. He said Mr. Dugan nominated him to the board of directors although it meant Mr. Dugan would work for a person who was about 20 years younger than himself.
Mr. Dugan was born in Oshkosh, Wis. His father, an accountant, moved the family to Cleveland when he was in the third grade. He later graduated from St. Ignatius High School.
He served in the Army Corps of Engineers during World War II, entering as a private in 1943. He was in three European campaigns, serving in France and Belgium. Later, he was transferred to Okinawa. He left the service as a sergeant in 1945.
Mr. Dugan served as past commander of The Plain Dealer Post of the American Legion.
He was a trustee and member of the executive committee of Catholic Charities Corp., beginning in 1962. He served as campaign vice chairman in 1970. He also served as district chairman of the appeal's special gifts division and led the annual fund campaign for two years.
He was a member of St. Christopher Catholic Church for more than 50 years and attended daily Mass for many years. He was a member and past president of the Serra Club, a Catholic laymen's organization to further vocations to the priesthood.

Descendants of Thomas Dugan

Civic minded, Mr. Dugan served as a trustee of John Carroll University and of the Greater Cleveland Hospital Association. He was a member of the Cleveland Advertising Club, the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce and the Westwood Country Club.
